

NCC's mental health/suicide prevention plan includes 4 main components: suicide prevention, de-stigmatizing mental illness, increasing help-seeking, and promoting mental wellness. Related information is posted on THRIVE's (NCC's Mental Wellness Alliance) publicly accessible web page (<https://www.northampton.edu/thrive.htm>), as well as our publicly accessible Counseling Services web page (<https://www.northampton.edu/student-services/counseling-services.htm>).

NCC has engaged in several initiatives to enact this plan. Perhaps most significantly, we have provided QPR (Question, Persuade, Refer) training to over 200 students, faculty and staff to allow them to serve as "gatekeepers" to detect students at risk for suicide and direct them to needed support. The College recently allocated funds and is currently pursuing a grant to expand this to several hundred additional gatekeepers, potentially reaching thousands of students in need over the next several years. In addition, Counseling Services provides free anonymous mental health screenings via our website and learning management system (LMS) to all students, with over 4,000 screenings taken since January 2019. The results have informed our programming efforts, and the screening platform refers students to on campus and external resources including services that provide immediate crisis response.

NCC's Behavioral Assessment Team (BAT) serves as a central repository for reports of behavior that may be indicative of a future threat of harm to self or others. All students, faculty and staff are encouraged to report any such behavior that does not place anyone in immediate danger. For circumstances involving the latter, students, faculty and staff are directed to report the situation immediately to NCC Public Safety which is available for immediate response on a 24/7/365 basis. As needed to best assess the situation, Public Safety will involve NCC counselors or community resources such as county crisis services or paramedics.

The following information geared toward preventing suicide is posted on NCC's Counseling Services website. The information will also be communicated to all students. Within the first month of the fall and spring semesters, all students will receive an email from the Dean of Student Success and Retention with information about mental health support resources. This will include national, state and local suicide prevention hotlines as well as on campus and local/remote crisis intervention services. This information will also be posted on NCC's learning management system (LMS).

PREVENTION: Warning Signs and Risk Factors

Awareness of suicide warning signs and risk factors may help to prevent suicide.

Suicide Warning Signs

A change in behavior or the presence of entirely new behaviors may indicate someone is at risk of suicide. This is of particular concern if the new or changed behavior is related to a painful event, loss, or change. Most people who take their lives exhibit one or more warning signs, either through what they say or what they do.

Talk

If a person talks about:

Desire to die, killing oneself	Feeling hopeless, tired of life	Having no reason to live
Being a burden to others	Feeling trapped	Unbearable pain

Behavior

Behaviors that may signal risk, especially if related to a painful event, loss or change:

Increased use of drugs/alcohol	Looking for a way to end their lives, such as searching online for methods	Withdrawing from activities
Isolating from family, friends	Sleeping too much or too little	Visiting or calling people to say goodbye
Giving away money and/or prized possessions	Aggression	Fatigue
Sudden and drastic changes in behaviors (i.e. hitting, screaming, etc.)	Relapse (mental health, substance use disorder, chronic health condition etc.)	Putting personal affairs and business affairs into order
Stockpiling pills, purchasing a gun	Sudden interest or disinterest in religion

Mood

People who are considering suicide often display one or more of the following moods:

Depression	Anxiety	Loss of interest
Irritability	Humiliation/Shame	Agitation/Anger
Relief/Sudden improvement in mood/Euphoria

Suicide Risk Factors

Risk factors are characteristics or conditions that increase the chance that a person may try to complete suicide. Awareness of these risk factors may help to prevent suicide.

Health Factors

Mental health conditions	Chronic health conditions	Traumatic brain injury	Terminal illness
--------------------------	---------------------------	------------------------	------------------

Environmental Factors/Situational Clues

Access to lethal means including but not limited to firearms and drugs	Prolonged stress including but not limited to harassment, bullying, relationship problems, unemployment	Stressful life events, like rejection, divorce, financial crisis, other life transitions or loss	Exposure to another person's suicide, or to graphic or sensationalized accounts of suicide
Sudden unexpected loss of freedom or anticipated loss of financial security	Loss of a cherished counselor, teacher, therapist	A recent move, especially if unwanted

Historical Factors

Previous suicide attempts	Family history of suicide	Child abuse, neglect and/or trauma
---------------------------	---------------------------	------------------------------------

INTERVENTION: ON/OFF Campus Resources

Knowledge of on/campus resources may help when persuading an at-risk person to access help.

Counseling Services

NCC Counseling Services is staffed by 6 full-time and 6 part-time counselors available to provide counseling support to students in distress. The college also has trained individuals, including Public Safety officers (all campuses) and Housing staff (Bethlehem campus), available 24/7 in our residence halls who can triage and get access to help as needed (e.g., calling for counselors to respond to campus after hours or dispatching emergency medical services to transport a student to a hospital).

Full-time college employees have access to an Employee Assistance Plan administered by Health Advocate. Confidential services offered at no cost to the employee include mental health counseling as well as other services supporting wellness and life management. During the COVID-19 crisis, this has been extended to part-time employees as well.

QPR

Northampton Community College is equipped to offer evidence based gatekeeper suicide prevention training. Certified QPR instructors are available to train staff, students and faculty to become QPR gatekeepers at all NCC campuses. CLICK HERE for more information about QPR Training. If you would like to schedule a training on your campus please contact Dr. Eric Rosenthal (erosenthal@northampton.edu).

POST-INTERVENTION: Support and Communication

Support Services and Communication

In the event of a confirmed suicide of a student, faculty member or staff member, NCC will make support services readily available and will communicate directly with affected students, faculty and staff. This may take the form of counselor visits to classrooms or residence halls. The Office of the Dean of Student Success and Retention will work in conjunction with NCC's Marketing and Communications to share information to the extent possible.

Note: The information contained within this document will be updated periodically to align with best practices.
